Camille Maben provided an overview of the past, current, and future public education and outreach work from 2008 through 2021. She provided campaign highlights, including, but not limited to, the process by which a media contractor is selected, the use of focus groups to help determine what best resonates with families, and the types of media (e.g., Facebook, outdoor/billboards, TV, and radio) used to educate and engage parents and caregivers.

George Halvorson provided additional information and background of why some of the campaign goals were implemented: to promote reading, and to lessen the achievement gap and the chances of negative behavior in children later in their lives.

Ms. Maben provided evaluation results to show the overall effectiveness of the campaign. She mentioned parents are talking, reading, and singing to their children at high levels; however, more work can be done with Spanish-speaking families to reinforce the value of talking, reading, and singing to their children.
